no one else to share the responsibility.
She hired helpers for preparing the fruit,
but all the buying, the actual brainwork of making, and the marketing were Mrs.
Ingham's share. The result of her work is a good home and an income sufficient for her needs and pleasures; and in her pretty, sweet smelling kitchen, set among the trees in her garden, she finds an interest that challenges the years.

Smith put up a hundred bottles of unfermented grape juice for family use. She took great pains with it, and the friends to whom she gave a bottle now and then were so loud in its praise that the next year she put up two hundred bottles, so that she would have more to give away.
Then her friends asked if she would make more, so that she could sell them some.

supplement it with a gasolene stove, and also hire several women to prepare the fruit, because the two stoves took all her time and attention. By the end of summer her jars of fruit filled a car and that made the freight cheaper.

Then she offered a certain amount of canned fruit as commission to any one who would send in a certain amount of orders, and women got to work soliciting and the result of it all is that to-day she is at the head of a business that amounts to $100,000 a year. Her annual output averages 300 to so, the property of the pickling of olives any of these cookstove enterprises could be carried on elsewhere, and many similar ones are.

No woman who has gone far by the cookstove route will say it is easy. It means plenty of work, infinite patience, conscientious care. It means establishing a standard and living up to it. The word "homemade" is a talisman, but it must be used in good faith or it will lose its magic. Once a woman has worked up a demand for something to eat she may raise her price, but must never lower her quality. On this more than all else depends her success. depends her success.

LEONIA'S MUNICIPAL SEWERS.

Town to Issue Bonds to Boy Pri-

Municipal ownership apparently has carried the day in the discussion which has been going on for several weeks in Leonia, N. J., in connection with the plans Monday the Leonia Borough Council authorized a bond issue of $23,000 to purchase three of the privately owned sewer voted on by the taxpayers in the latter part of August, but from what can be learned concerning public sentiment on the question it seems very unlikely that there will be any disapproval of the council's action.
